Requisites for Admission.

The required age for admission to College is fifteen years and a proportionate increase of age, if advanced classes are to be entered, unless by a special vote of the faculty.

Examinations for admission are held on the day preceding the opening of each Session. Students may be examined and received at any time, in special cases, except during vacation. Those coming from another college must be free from censure.

To enter the Classical Course, the student must prove himself conversant with English Grammar, Arithmetic, Geography, the Latin and Greek Grammars, the prose part of the Greek Reader, two books of Cæsar's Commentaries, and four books of Virgil's Æneid. It is recommended that the student be acquainted with Algebra through simple equations.

To enter the Scientific Course the Student must prove himself conversant with the above English studies, and some elementary history of the United States. He must also be able to write respectably, English compositions. The examinations for admission will be strict and thorough.

Location.

Lewisburg is the principal town of Union County, on the West Branch of the Susquehanna, eight miles above Northumberland, and four below Milton, and contains upwards of 2000 inhabitants. It is nearly a mile from the direct Canal which passes from Philadelphia by Harrisburg up to Lock Haven, &c. Freight comes directly to the wharf through a crosscut, but the Packet Boats pass straight on through Milton, Williamsport, &c. Strangers, therefore, coming to the University by canal, should apprise some of the Faculty of the day, so that a carriage may be in waiting for them at the packet landing.

A pleasant Route, particularly in summer, is through Pottsville and Northumberland by Rail Road and Stage Coaches. There is a prospect of an early completion of a Rail Road, which will connect Lewisburg, directly with New York, Buffalo, Dunkirk, Erie, Philadelphia, and Baltimore.

Moral Culture.

While it cannot be expected that a full moral guardianship can be exercised over College students by any Faculty of instruction, it will be constantly regarded as the object of the deepest interest, and each professor is required to use his diligence, not only to suppress disorders, but to exert a pure and saving influence on the students, without obtruding upon them any sectarian peculiarities.

Beside the usual daily service in Chapel, at which every student is required to be present, there is a weekly prayer meeting in College, and a Bible Class on Monday, for the critical study of the New Testament, taught by the Greek Professor; attendance on which is optional.

Voluntary Societies.

The Society of Alumni is composed of all who have received the degree of Bachelor of Arts or Bachelor of Philosophy at this University, and such others as having left this Institution free from censure, may be elected members, at the annual meetings. Its objects are the promotion of Literature, the preservation of pleasing associations, and especially the welfare and advancement of the University.

The Euepian, and Theta Alpha Societies, have weekly meetings for debates, essays, &c., and are composed of students in the collegiate course. Each has a convenient hall; and by an arrangement of the Faculty, will always have about an equal number of members.

The Academic Society comprises all such students in the Academy or Grammar school as may choose to belong, and are of proper age.

The Society for Inquiry is a religious body, comprising students from both departments. It receives religious periodicals, corresponds with kindred societies, and with Missionaries in various parts of the World. At its monthly meetings there is always an essay read in public, touching some important subject connected with the evangelization of the world. It has a valuable library of works connected with missions, and a museum of ethnological articles.

Buildings.

The buildings now ereeted furnish a Chapel 60 feet square, a Library Room, 40 feet square, a Cabinet 40 by 60 feet, six large Recitation Rooms, three Soeiety Rooms, a Reading Room, sixty-five Dormitories, and thirty-two Studies. The buildings are on an elevated spot, overlooking the village and a large region of country. The campus embraces a beautiful grove of seventeen aeres.

Finances, &c.

The Institution has no debt, and owns over 70 acres of land around the buildings, which are becoming valuable as town lots. All requisite maps, charts, aneient and modern, a library of nearly 3000 vols,, a cabinet of minerals, fossils, birds, fishes, &c., second to few in the country, a costly Manikin, and other aids for teaehing physiology, a very ample philosophical apparatus and a chemical laboratory. It also has an endowment subscribed, of about $50,000.

Recitations.

Eaeh student has three recitations a day, requiring an average preparation of two hours eaeh. Compositions and declamations semi-monthly. Vocal Musie weekly.

Merit Roll.

A daily record is made of the attendanee, conduct, and recitations of eaeh student; each instructor keeping a separate aeeount for every class reeiting to him. These are handed to the President weekly, who is thus put in the possession of all the information neeessary for his guidance in conversing with students or corresponding with their parents. The weekly summary of these elass-papers is reeorded in a permanent book, by whieh the standing of a student at any time, and his grade at graduation, is exactly determined.

Commencement.

The Commeneement oeeurs on the third Wednesday in August; after which is a vaeation till the third Thursday in October.

The College year begins on the third Thursday in October. The first session is divided into two terms. The Spring vacation embraees four weeks preceding the third Thursday in May when the Summer term eommences.

ACADEMY.

The studies in the Academy are arranged with particular reference to the requirements for entering the College classes, while at the same time, provision is made for the thorough instruction of those who prefer a full or limited academic course. Those who design to enter the classical course in the College can, with diligence, complete their preparatory studies in two years. But, without regard to the time he has spent, the student must be prepared to sustain a fair examination on the studies enumerated on page 15.

The studies of the Academy embrace English, Latin, and Greek Grammars: Greek Reader; Latin Reader, and Cæsar's Commentaries; Virgil, Anthon's; Arithmetic, Stoddard's; Algebra, Davies'; Geography, Ancient and Modern with use of Globes; History and Chronology; American History; Natural Philosophy; Elements of Natural History; Penmanship, Book Keeping, &c. Particular attention will be paid to English Composition in the use of Parker's Progressive Exercises. Rhetorical exercises and Vocal Music throughout the Academic course.

Academy pupils, besides popular lectures on various subjects suited to their ability, are allowed, when it would be useful, to be present at the experimental lectures of the College Classes.

The building is on the College hill, surrounded with trees, 60 by 80 feet in dimensions, and amply provided with every convenience and comfort.

The new principal has already proved himself worthy of the high reputation which led to his appointment. He has been engaged in teaching for fifteen years, and brings to his present post, not only experience, but great skill and zeal.

Lewisburg Female Seminary.

This Institution, designed as a Boarding and Day School, is pleasantly located within half a mile of the College Buildings, commanding a delightful view of the Susquehanna river and the surrounding country. The Seminary Building is large, airy and commodious; furnished in the most suitable manner, without regard to expense, and is capable of accommodating thirty boarders in addition to the family of the Principal.

The design of this Institution is to furnish the means of a thorough and liberal education for Young Ladies, and has been founded by the trustees of the University, in pursuance of the original plan of providing a complete system of means for the education of both sexes.

The course of instruction comprises three years, and when completed entitles the pupil to a diploma. Provision is made for the instruction of those who are not prepared to enter at once upon the regular course. Those whose attainments may admit of it, may enter an advanced class, and graduate as soon as they can pass an examination in the required studies. Those wishing to spend only a single session can pursue their studies with such classes as they are prepared to enter. Pupils will find it to their interest to be present punctually on the first day of the session, and to remain until its close.

The regular course embraces Reading, Orthography, Penmanship, English Grammar, Arithmetic, Geography, History and Chronology, Natural Philosophy, Physiology, Chemistry, Botany, Rhetoric, Logic, Natural History, Book Keeping, Astronomy, Algebra, Geometry, Evidences of Christianity and Mental and Moral Philosophy. Frequent exercises in composition throughout the course. Instruction is also given in Latin, French, Drawing, Painting, Ornamental Needle Work, and Instrumental and Vocal Music.

It is designed so to intersperse Ornamental Branches with severer studies, as to afford an agreeable relaxation.

Besides skilful, thorough and experienced teachers employed regularly in the Seminary, the Professors in the University have recitations and give lectures with the use of ample apparatus.

The Principal, who will always reside in the Seminary, will ever exercise a watchful care over the morals and health of the pupils; governing the School by appealing to the better feelings and higher principles of the pupils; a mode of discipline which has, thus far, been found entirely successful. In connection with a thorough mental discipline, special attention ls given to the lmprovement of the manners and every inducement is held out to the formation of habits of diligence, punctuality, order and neatness. Pupils are required to take daily exercise in the open air, when the weather will permit, and when it is inclement a well arranged gymnasia is employed, in a room 50 by 30 feet, wholly devoted to this purpose.

Pupils are required to attend public worship twice on Sunday, at such places as the parent or guardian may designate. Bible lessons are required every Monday. Parents are assured that while a healthful christian influence will at all times be attempted, no sectarian peculiarities will be inculcated.

Each pupil will board in the Institution, except in special cases, and will come furnished with umbrella, over shoes, four table napkins and a silver spoon. Each article of dress should be marked in full.
